DAYTON, Ohio, Jan. 31.—Orville Wright will be buried Monday beside his brother, Wilbur, who helped him build and fly the first success ful airplane.

Funeral services for the pioneer aviator, who died last night, will be held at 2:30 p.m. in the First Baptist Church, of which he was a member. Burial will be in Woodland Cemetery here. Dr. Charles L. Seasholes, church pastor, will conduct

Mr. Wright, 76, died in his sleep at Miami Valley Hospital of a lung congestion and heart ailment. He had entered the hospital Tuesday after a heart attack, the second in recent months.

Wilbur Wright, the older of the two famous brothers, died in 1912. The 12-second flight of their plane at Kitty Hawk, N. C., December 17, 1903, led to development of the modern airplane.

Not only was Mr. Wright the first man to fly an airplane, but he and his brother, working almost completely from their experiments, designed and built their first craft. Going further than most inventors of their day, they followed up their first test with a constant experimentation to improve their product. They advanced the airplane from a experiment to a practical means of transportation.

Out of their years of experimenting came a flimsy, kitelike biplane of wood, wire and cloth, powered by a sputtering motor that powered two crude propellers.

Then on that December morning in 1903, they started their little motor on the sand dunes of North Carolina and with Orville Wright at the controls, their plane began bumping down a shore track made of 2 by 4 inch scantlings spliced together. A few seconds later, man had made his first powered flightcovering a distance of 120 feet in
